The AOL Time Warner/Netscape should not be considered and consequently thrown out of court. I see no evidence that Microsoft has interfered illegally with the distribution of the Netscape Browser. Don't be pressured into litigation from the big AOL Time Warner complex. It's sour grapes because they cannot keep up with their Microsoft competition. These kinds of litigation will eventually stifle innovation & ideas. Why should Microsoft suffer when they have the best browser called Microsoft Internet Explorer? Why should Companies share their ideas with competition?
